Pippa Crerar

Political Editor, The Guardian and Co-presenter PESTON, ITV

Pippa has covered Westminster and international politics for more than two decades, reporting on seven general elections, eight prime ministers and too many major news stories to mention, from the Iraq war and the financial crash to Brexit and parliamentary scandals.

Pippa is Political Editor of The Guardian and co-presenter of the flagship political discussion programme on ITV, PESTON alongside Robert Peston.

Pippa is a warm, witty and authoritative speaker who has long experience of chairing, presenting and speaking at events in the political world and beyond.

She has trusted contacts right at the heart of government, across Whitehall and in the main opposition parties so has a deep insight into what is going on in British politics and society.

Prior to joining The Guardian, where she revealed the election betting scandal and the winter fuel u-turn, Pippa held the same role of Political Editor at the Daily Mirror where she exposed the Partygate and Barnard Castle scandals. Before that she covered politics at the London Evening Standard.

Alongside ITV, Pippa is a regular on broadcast media including Sky News, Channel 4 and the BBC, where she is a presenter of Radio 4's The Week In Westminster. She has also been portrayed in Michael Winterbottom's This England, a six-part television drama about Boris Johnson and his government.

Pippa is a multi-award winning journalist who has been Journalist of the Year with the London Press Club, the Society of Editors and the British Journalism Awards. She has won accolades including political journalist of the year, scoop of the year, investigation of the year, the Hugh Cudlipp Award and Women In Journalism's woman of the year.

“I was delighted that you were able to join our panel and share your views on the role our industry has to play in tackling the macro challenges facing Britain. Feedback from attendees has been exceptional and your participation clearly contributed significantly to what was a highly successful event.”

Association of British Insurers

“The feedback I heard was really positive and one delegate said that they loved that you weaved in the latest news in your keynote so it really was the most recent information you were including.”

Owen James

Ovid Health

“Pippa was an engaging and thought-provoking speaker at our annual conference. It was fascinating to hear her inside view on the biggest scoops of the last few years and listen to her speak passionately about the principles that drive her investigative journalism. She also never forgot her audience, relating her stories back to the experiences of those listening.”

FDA Union

“Roger provided lots of personality and kept the discussion moving well.”

Newcastle University

Pippa Crerar

“We were delighted to have Pippa deliver a short talk during our Newcastle University alumni celebration evening. Pippa provided us with an excellent speech detailing her time at our university and how it’s influenced her career today. This was extremely well received by our guests and Pippa went the extra mile to mingle with other graduates throughout the evening. It was a pleasure to work together, I’d highly recommend Pippa for any future speaking opportunities.”

Global Water Intelligence

“Pippa’s session was definitely the busiest final session we have had in a while as delegates stayed to hear her so that was great.”

CIPFA

Pippa was excellent and the panel discussion was really well received. I’m sure you will have lots of requests for her time in the coming months.

Aviva

“Pippa was lovely to work. Very insightful about the election and possible scenarios and her talk prompted a lot of audience questions that she was very happy to answer. Most rated Pippa’s subject matter and delivery as 5 out of 5.”
